

Contents

☰

Preface ix

- 1 Introduction: Political Engineering and the “Redemption of Spain” 1
- 2 The Concrete Dodecahedron: The Political Economy of Coal, Design, and the Landscape 15
- 3 Laboratories and Churches: Science, Industry, and National Catholicism 41
- 4 One Grain, One Nation: Rice Genetics and the Corporate State (1936–1952) 77
- 5 The Total Systematization of a River and the Limitations of “Totalitarianism”: Industry, Agriculture, and Physical Models in the Pyrenees 103
- 6 Scientific Standards as Tools for Political Transformation: Prestressed Concrete, European Integration, and the Regulatory State 137
- 7 Conclusion 159

Notes 165

Bibliography 249

Index 293