

Acknowledgments

1 Introduction: Why materials? / Ursula Klein and E.C. Spary

Part 1 The Production of Materials

Introduction to Part 1 / Ursula Klein

2 Vermilion, Mercury, Blood, and Lizards: Matter and Meaning in Metalworking / Pamela H. Smith

3 Ceramic Nature / Hanna Rose Shell

4 The Production of Silver, Copper, and Lead in the Harz Mountains from Late Medieval Times to the Onset of Industrialization / Christoph Bartels

5 Ink / Adrian Johns

6 Blending Technical Innovation and Learned Natural Knowledge: The Making of Ethers / Ursula Klein

Part 2 Materials in the Market Sphere

Introduction to Part 2 / Ursula Klein

7 Enlightened Milk: Reshaping a Bodily Substance into a Chemical Object / Barbara Orland

8 The Sparkling Nectar of Spas; or, Mineral Water as a Medically Commodifiable Material in the Province, 1770–1805 / Matthew D. Eddy

9 Liqueurs and the Luxury Marketplace in Eighteenth-Century Paris / E. C. Spary

Part 3 State Interventions

Introduction to Part 3 / Ursula Klein

10 Economizing Agricultural Resources in the German Economic Enlightenment / Marcus Popplow

11 The Crisis of English Gunpowder in the Eighteenth Century / Seymour H. Mauskopf

12 Between Craft Routines and Academic Rules: Natural Dyestuffs and the “Art” of Dyeing in the Eighteenth Century / Agustí Nieto-Galan