Acknowledgments

1. The Web of Knowledge
   A Roman World
   Knowing Nature in the Roman Context
   Overview

   Divinity and Divination
   Roman Virtues
   Nature and the Legitimation of the Republic
   A Ciceronian Contradiction?
   Knowledge of Nature and Virtuous Action
   Fabulae versus Learned Observation
   Conclusion

3. Law in Nature, Nature in Law
   Laws of Nature
   Natural Laws
   Human and Divine Governance
   Is a “Law of Nature” Even Possible in Antiquity?
   Divinity, Redux
   Conclusion

4. Epistemology and Judicial Rhetoric
   Theory-Ladenness and Observation
   Observations as Models
   Observational Selectivity
   Examination of Witnesses
   The Natural Authority of Morals
   Declamation and Certainty

5. The Embeddedness of Seeing
   Doubts about Vision
   Mechanisms of Seeing in Antiquity
   The Eyes as Organs
   Not Every Black Box Is a Camera Obscura
   Epistemologies of Seeing
   The Centrality of Experience