

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	xi
Preface	xiii
Acknowledgments	xvii
Series Editors' Introduction	xxi
1. History and Theory of Anthropology and Ethnology:
Introduction	1
2. Theory and Practice: G. W. Leibniz and the Advancement of Science in Russia	39
3. Enlightenment and Pietism: D. G. Messerschmidt and the Early Exploration of Siberia	87
4. Ethnography and Empire: G. F. Müller and the Description of Siberian Peoples	131
5. Anthropology and the Orient: C. Niebuhr and the Danish-German Arabia Expedition	219
6. From the Field to the Study: A. L. Schlözer and the Invention of Ethnology	269
7. Anthropology in the German Enlightenment: Plural Approaches to Human Diversity	357
8. Epilogue: Reception of the German Ethnographic Tradition	395
Conclusion	437
Notes	459
References Cited	515
Index	689